

Stanger Bros. Admitted To Bail

Sign Up For Blacktop Right of Way

The Will County Right of Way Committee has been active in Mokena the past week buying up right of way for the proposed black top road to be built by the county next year. This road will connect at the east end of Front street in Mokena and then follow the gravel road north and then east to Route 45.

The present gravel road is only 50 feet wide but the county requirements are for a 70 foot width for the highway. The County is paying $200 an acre and $1.50 per rod for setting back of fences. Under the set up 10 feet on each side of the road from Mokena to Route 45 had to be acquired.

It is understood that practically all property owners are signed up with the exception of one or two.

This black top road will give Mokena a very fine connection with Route 45 and in addition with Wolf Road which connects with Lincoln highway and the Southwest highway. Mokena has access to three of the most important concrete highways in this vicinity.

JOLIET TEACHER TO ADDRESS MOKENA PTA.

The regular meeting of the Mokena PTA, will be held Tuesday Nov. 28 in the school gym.

HELPS HIMSELF TO FRANKFORT FARMER'S GASOLINE

George Kampe residing on a farm near Frankfort, reported to the Will County sheriff's office Monday that an elderly man drove into his yard and asked for gasoline. When Mrs. Kampe said she did not know where the gas was kept, he walked over to a barrel and helped himself to some gasoline and drove away.

Lt. Oliver Lauffer of Mokena Listed Killed In Action

Lt. Oliver P. Lauffer of Mokena who was reported missing in action over Hanover, Germany about a year and a half ago, was listed as killed in action according to a dispatch from Washington listing Illinois men killed in action. The dispatch was dated November 18.

The dispatch in listing Lt. Lauffer's death as given in last Sunday's Chicago Tribune said:

Lauffer, 2d Lt. Oliver P.—Mrs. Florence Steele, mother, Mokena.

Morning Star Enters 36th Year of Service

Peter H. McCarthy, the Joliet Good Samaritan, celebrated his 35th anniversary on "Whiskey Row" on Collins street last Friday and Saturday with special services at his famous "Morning Star Mission." Looking back over the years, Supt. McCarthy decided it was a life well spent. So he's starting out on another year of it.

His Morning Star Mission on N. Collins famed in Joliet as "Whiskey Row" because of its historic preponderance of saloons, runs open house for the down and out. Free food is available from 6 AM to 9 PM, lodging is free if they want it, and clothes are available if they need them.

All Supt. McCarthy hopes for in return is for his guests to "see the light." It isn't obligatory, but it works. Of the 3,845 men he has given lodging at the Mission and the 7,670 he has fed in the last year, he's hung up a record of 449 conversions. Carried back over his 35 years at the Mission, the totals read 93,000 housed, 260,000 fed, 13,125 converted.

Verily the Morning Star Mission and its founder stand out like a big lighthouse in a dark and evil world.

TURKEY PARTY SPONSORED BY HOLY NAME SOCIETY SUCCESS

The second annual Turkey party sponsored by the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's parish, Mokena, on Thursday evening November 16 was a grand success. Miss C. Tierney, 4221 Wentworth Ave., Chicago was awarded the chicken, Roland Newton the duck and Mr. Anton A. Nelson of Mokena the turkey.

Prior to the party, bunco and pinocle was enjoyed by those attending with first prize for bunco going to Miss Rita Tierney of Mokena and Mr. J. C. Knight of Frankfort took the honors for pinocle. Second prize being awarded to Miss Elizabeth Rinke and Mrs. Harold Spiess both of Mokena.

Thanks and appreciation is expressed by the society to everyone who in anyway made this affair a success.

FRANKFORT WOMAN'S CLUB TO HOLD CHRISTMAS PARTY

The November meeting of the Frankfort Woman's Club was held Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. W. V. Hedges with Mrs. LaMar Weathersbee presiding. After the pledge to the flag and the reading of the Woman's Club Collect, Mrs. Fred Heisner read the secretary's report and Mrs. O. Maples read the treasurer's report. The Christmas party was discussed and it was agreed that each member shall bring a 50 cent Christmas gift for distribution among disabled servicemen confined to Gardner hospital in Chicago. The party will be held at the home of Mrs. Walter Pfaff, Wednesday, December 13 at 6:00 pm. It will be a potluck supper.

Mrs. Maples will act as program chairman. Mrs. Walter Pfaff presented the following program: An article entitled "Dear Mom, Don't Worry" by Mrs. E. Engelman; "Gen. Chas. De Gaulle" by Mrs. Maples; an article on antiques Mother Called it Junk, by Mrs. Raymond Hiroshige; The Situation in China by Mrs. Hedges, The Uses of Glycerine by Mrs. Fred Heisner, the Charm of Saying "Thank You", by Mrs. Eric Bizer. Mrs. Hiroshige prepared a quiz on popular advertisements and Miss Beatrice Fehland, a guest, conducted a quiz on observation.

Mrs. Wm. Semmler of Mokena wife of the president of the Fort Lions Club was also a guest. Refreshments were served.

Among the old books displayed was a Concordance to the Bible published in 1804. It is the property of Mrs. Geo. Andrew and was used by her grandfather Rev. Joseph Stephen. Mrs. Mitchell brought a book by Sir Walter Scott published in 1829. Mrs. Lawrence Woodman read an article from an etiquette book, published in 1857 and Mrs. Arthur Lambrecht displayed copies of the Delineator magazine of 1895 and 1897.

Traveling Photographer

Mobile X-ray units mounted in trucks make it possible to provide health examinations for large numbers of industrial workers and school children. Christmas Seals finance many of these traveling clinics. X-ray finds the disease early—the sooner tuberculosis is discovered, the better the chances of recovery.

Will County Seal Campaign Is Being Launched

Dr. Mat Blomfield, president of the Will County Tuberculosis Association, has named Mr. Thomas A. Lauer as the Seal Sale chairman for Will County. The annual sale of the Tuberculosis Christmas Seals will begin November 27, 1944.

The Will County Tuberculosis Association has made much progress through Health Education programs and follow up known cases referred by physicians and Selective Service in its fight to control the spread of the disease. It is now time to conduct surveys so that tuberculosis can be found in its early stages. If funds are made available this year, this Association, with the cooperation of the Will County Sanatorium, plan on purchasing a mobile x-ray unit to be used in tuberculosis surveys in schools and industries.

"Most of us realize," Mr. Lauer asserted, "that we must maintain a high level of health in the community if our men and women are to devote their best energies to the war effort. We know, too, of the splendid health program which the tuberculosis association has launched in this county. Laxity now would undo the patient work of years and would leave our people an easy prey to a dread disease. With the type of community leaders who are volunteering their services to the Christmas Seal drive this year, I am sure the sale will meet with the success necessary to continue the effective work of the tuberculosis association."

Mrs. Hugo Neithammer of Mokena is contact chairman for Mokena and she is hopeful that all receiving the seals will remit as much as possible to this most worthy cause. There is no house to house solicitation and all money goes entirely for this work.

Father of Wm. Bradley of Mokena Dies

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bradley and son attended the funeral in Iowa.

HOLD FINAL RITES FOR LILLIAN ROBSON OF PALOS PARK

Friends of Dorothy Robson, former correspondent of this paper for Palos Park, extend their sympathy on the death of her sister Lillian V. who passed away last Tuesday. Besides her father Stanley, she is survived by Sylvia Simpson, Dorothy, Cpl. James, S 2-c Stanley; Pfc. Wm. Macelline, Bernice, Mary Lou and Jean. Funeral services were held Thursday, November 16 at 2 pm. in the Methodist church in Orland Park. The Rev. Henry E. Rompel officiated. Interment was made in Oak Hill cemetery, Palos Park.

FILL XMAS STOCKINGS FOR VETERANS

Mrs. D. B. Murphy of Tinley Park who has been in charge of Christmas bags for the Tinley Park Women's club, which they have been filling for the patients in the veterans hospitals, has 20 bags left to be filled. Anyone who would like one of these bags as a Christmas gift to a veteran please get in touch with Mrs. Murphy by calling her at Tinley Park 553.

Frankfort Lions Club Sponsoring 6th War Loan Campaign

Following a talk on the 6th war loan campaign by Fred Scheel of New Lenox township, chairman of the campaign for the rural areas of Will County before the Frankfort Lions Club Tuesday evening, the Club voted to sponsor the drive in the village of Frankfort and the following Lions will have charge of the drive, each being assigned a certain section of the village:

Geo. Sangmeister, Wm. Kampe, Emil Lenhardt, Arthur C. Bauch, Fred Heisner, Henry Breidert; Alfred Zechlin, Wm. Hansen, Geo. Waldvogel, Adam Heisner, Fred Klepper, J. C. Knight and Wesley Hollstein.

Clarence Schroth is serving as co-chairman for the rural area around Frankfort. It is understood that in the Lincoln Estates the Keane Ave., Community Club will sponsor the drive. Everyone is urged to buy all the bonds possible.

The quota for Frankfort and immediate vicinity is $36,000 while the quota for the entire township is $72,000.

Mr. Scheel pointed out that Frankfort had established an excellent record in the 5th war loan drive by going way over the established quota.

The Lions Club is sponsoring a war loan drive for the second time having sponsored the 4th war loan drive.

The Lions voted to have their annual Christmas party December 19 with a gift exchange.

Claude Graeff of the Illinois Department of Conservation gave a talk on the post war lake program being sponsored by the Conservation Department and declared that $200,000 is to be allotted to each county for establishing artificial lakes for fishing purposes and the propagation of game birds.

The following letter from Miss Viola Lankenau, principal of the Frankfort public school to the Lions Club was read:

Members of Lions Club: We, the teachers and pupils of the Frankfort Public School, wish to express our appreciation and thanks to the members of the Lions club for their donation of $35.00 on October 6, 1944 and also for your cooperation and aid during the past year.

To show our appreciation we can only try to assure you that we are trying to learn to live and conduct ourselves in such a manner as to win the respect of the community in which we live.

As yet, we have not definitely decided in what way your gift will be spent. If you have any suggestions or ideas in mind we would gladly take them in consideration.

Again, thanks to you all. Sincerely yours, Viola Lankenau, Principal, Frankfort School

Robert Funk of Tinley German War Prisoner

There was one family in Tinley Park who were very thankful on Thanksgiving Day and that was the J. C. Funk family who received a telegram Wednesday from the war department advising that their son Lt. Robert Funk who was recently reported missing in action in France, was captured after his plane was shot down and that he is now a prisoner of war in Germany.

The wife of the co-pilot on Lt. Funk's ship called the Funk home and reported she had also been notified by the war department that her husband who had also been reported missing had also been taken prisoner by the Germans.

Mokena Boy Shown In War Picture

A Mokena Boy was recognized in a war picture which was published in last Saturday Chicago Times and also in a recent Saturday Evening Post.

The picture shows a trio of Yanks, trudging wearily along a road near Nancy, France and heading for hospital in the rear area following action in a battle. T. Sgt. Nicholas Heiman is on one side of a badly wounded soldier and on the other side is a soldier slightly wounded. They are all members of the 35th Infantry Division. T. Sgt. Heiman is a son of Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Heiman of Mokena.

Plead Guilty To Man Slaughter

William and Louis Stanger, of Mokena, who were indicted for murder and manslaughter by the September grand jury, pleaded not guilty Saturday, when arraigned in circuit court.

A motion was made by George M. Tearney, attorney for the Stanger brothers, to have the case set for trial. This motion was made in view of the fact that Circuit Judge James V. Bartley said he was of the same mind regarding the matter of bail as he was six weeks ago when the motion to admit the pair to bail was denied. The judge explained that only if additional evidence was presented would he hold another hearing on the matter of bond.

Agreeable to Early Trial

Judge Bartley advised Attorney Tearney and State's Attorney James E. Burke that he would set the trial for as soon as possible and was willing to call a jury to hear the case.

The hearing on the motion for setting the trial was continued until Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock by agreement of the attorneys. Burke asked for the continuance to enable him to further investigate a certain phase of the case.

Saturday a hearing was held also on the motion to quash all four counts of the indictment returned against the Stangers. The first two counts charge murder and the last two manslaughter.

The motion was overruled with the exception of the second murder count. The motion to quash was allowed in connection with the second count. Attorney Tearney charged that the count was incomplete and not specific enough for a murder count. It charged that "violent means" were used by the Stangers to bring about the death of Luther Scott, 52.

Tearney waived all arguments on the manslaughter counts. On the first murder count, he alleged that the indictment was faulty in its wording and hence invalid. He alleged that the indictment read, "died from effects of said wounds", and it should have set forth the causes of the wounds. The first portion of the indictment did set forth the causes, Burke maintained. Tearney also questioned how striking with the fists created "malice aforethought" as charged in the murder counts.

The indictment was returned against the Stangers in connection with the death of Scott, the father-in-law of their sister Elaine. The Stangers allegedly beat Scott during a family quarrel June 16. Scott died in Silver Cross hospital June 23.

The Stanger brothers pled guilty to one of the manslaughter counts of the indictment Tuesday morning. They have been admitted to bail. On the recommendation of State's Attorney James E. Burke, bonds of the two men were set at $5000 each.

The motion to admit them to bail was not allowed, however, until the state's attorney made a motion to "nolle prosequi" the remaining murder count of the indictment as well as the fourth count which was manslaughter. George M. Tearney, of Chicago, indicated in court Tuesday morning that the bond for the two brothers would be made within a few hours so that his clients could be released. They have been in jail since September.

Asks Probation

A motion was made by Attorney Tearney to have the two men admitted to probation. Circuit Judge James V. Bartley appointed Paul Ohman, probation officer, to investigate the case thoroughly and to make his report to the court on Jan. 5.

The hearing on the motion for probation was continued until that time.

Four counts were included in the indictment, two for murder and two for manslaughter. The second murder count was quashed Saturday morning during a hearing to quash all the counts in the indictment. With the state's attorney's motion to "nolle prosequi", the one murder count and the one manslaughter count, only one manslaughter count against the Stangers remain. They pleaded "not guilty" to the three counts Saturday morning.

It was to the last manslaughter count that they pleaded guilty Tuesday morning. When brought to court a hearing was to be held on a motion to set the matter for trial. Tearney, however, made a motion at the beginning of the proceedings to withdraw this motion.

Judge Bartley advised the Stangers of their constitutional rights and warned them of the consequences of their guilty plea. However, when they still persisted in the plea it was accepted by the court.

BRITAIN'S BANKRUPT STATUS

One of the most important documents bearing on the postwar world soon will be issued by the British government in the form of a White Paper. It will be a survey of Britain's financial position and a frank admission that she is bankrupt.

The White Paper will tell in detail how British investments throughout the world have been liquidated to pay for the war and will come to the conclusion that, if the British Empire is to continue free trading, she must have outside help.

The alternative to free trade and free competition, the White Paper will say, is a system of barter, restricted trade and cartels, such as that practiced by Germany after the last war. International cartels, of course, have been blasted publicly by President Roosevelt and one British corporation, Imperial Chemical Industries, already has been prosecuted by the justice department on a charge of conspiring with the Du Ponts before the war to control the world production of certain chemicals.

According to inside word from the diplomatic corps, the publication of Britain's frank survey of her bankrupt financial position will coincide with the secret conferences now taking place here between Lord Keynes and U. S. officials regarding the renewal of lend-lease.

With the war in Europe nearing a close and with U. S. forces now getting a greater proportion of war supplies direct from the United States, British war needs for lend-lease are dwindling. However, the British have proposed in Lord Keynes' private conversations, a new type of postwar lend-lease whereby the British could resell goods to foreign countries in order to reestablish their export trade.

Keynes Proposal

Word leaking from the diplomatic corps is that Lord Keynes now proposes a total lend-lease allotment to Great Britain of 6½ billions for 1945, of which 3½ billions could be reexported in British trade. Most of this would be in the form of American raw materials which the British would process into finished goods and then sell. The British do not propose that finished American products be given them for reexport, but only that they get lend-leased raw materials to revive their crippled industries.

One proposal is to set up a new postwar lend-lease court composed of one Britisher and two Americans which would decide which goods could be used for British trading purposes.

The whole plan will be submitted to congress probably before Christmas.

ARMY'S PREFABRICATED BRIDGES

One of the great but little known stories of the Western front is the way in which army engineers got a group of bridge experts together nearly two years ahead of the European invasion and designed fabricated sections of bridges which would exactly replace specific bridges in France, Holland and Belgium.

Through the European underground, army engineers were able to get exact measurements of the bridges which they knew would be destroyed by the retreating Nazis. Each part was numbered, and special assembly crews, trained in England, rehearsed the job of putting them in place.

When the invasion came, these bridges traveled so close behind our advancing armies that they were frequently ahead of the field kitchens. And on arrival at a destroyed bridge its replacement was a matter of hours.

HILLMAN WOULD END PAC

Sidney Hillman didn't advertise it but, during the last days of the campaign, he took steps to disband his controversial Political Action committee. The final decision will not be up to him alone, for the whole thing will be threshed out at the CIO national convention in Chicago. But not waiting for the convention, Hillman sent notice to most of the 200 members of the PAC staff that they go off the payroll before then.

Originally PAC was set up as a permanent organization, and there are several schools of thought inside the CIO regarding its continuation. One group, including auto workers president R. J. Thomas, wants to keep PAC alive. Hillman, on the other hand, wants to shut up shop, concentrate on New York politics, and also get his health back.

MERRY-GO-ROUND

All during the war, FDR has been a close reader of Carl Sandburg's "Lincoln" and has continued his reading during the campaign. Someone who dropped into his private study one day found a copy of the book open to Lincoln's war days.

During the 1864 campaign, McClellan's followers accused Lincoln of squandering public funds, mismanagement of the government, destroying civil liberties, meddling with the war, and standing out for "unconditional surrender."

Their Days of Hunger Are Over

In This Corner—the Winners

Another term in the White House has been assured for Franklin D. Roosevelt, who together with his running mate, Harry S. Truman, right, received a total of 432 electoral votes, 17 less than the Democrats secured in 1940. Truman, senator from Missouri, gained nationwide fame as head of the committee investigating war expenditures. Dewey and his running mate secured a total of 99 electoral votes, unless late soldier votes change the picture, which is not considered likely by most political observers.

Too Late for Treasure Hunt

Insert shows Rudolph Wickel of Verona, N. J., as he left for Holyoke, Mass., to dig up a bonanza of $1,000, whose location was told him as a studio guest on a quiz program. Others heard the program, and Wickel arrived to find that Jose H. Roy and his 14-year-old brother-in-law, Henry Martell, already had the money, as shown above.

Posted on Election Returns

GIs of the American news services broadcast election returns to American soldiers all over the world from the New York headquarters of Yank magazine. The army news services shooting the result overseas with an estimated 25,000 words by cable and another 25,000 by radio to furnish the armed forces with early returns.

Wives of Winners

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, upper; and Mrs. Harry S. Truman, wife of the newly elected vice president of the United States. Unlike the first lady of the land, Mrs. Truman takes little part in politics or in public life activities. Mrs. F. D. R. says she is ready for new term.

Stars on Her Flag

Another gold star has been added to the service flag of Mrs. Alben Borgstrom, Tremonton, Utah, mother of Marine Pvt. Boyd Borgstrom, who was discharged by marine command, when first three brothers were killed in action.

THE CHRISTIAN VIEW OF INDUSTRY

LESSON TEXT—Luke 19:15-26; II Thessalonians 3:10-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—Let him that stole steal no more; but rather let him labor, working with his hands the thing that is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth.—Ephesians 4:28.

Work is a blessing, and the proper attitude toward it is an important part of the life of a Christian. Industry has found its best and most dependable workers among those who believe in Christ. It has also come to realize that the strengthening of the faith of its workers makes them better workmen; hence we see all over the land the interesting development of chaplains in industrial plants. That activity rightly planned and properly conducted can be of great value to both the individual and to industry.

Our lesson rightly deals with the individual. Christianity is a personal matter, a life rather than a theory. It deals with the man rather than the mass.

I. We Are Accountable for Opportunity (Luke 19:15).

The king in this parable is Christ, who has now gone away, to return when God is ready for Him to set up His kingdom on earth. In the meantime His servants have been given that which they should be using for Him.

Two things stand out in this story. First, the fact that Jesus is coming again. There are many scoffers who deny that blessed truth (II Pet. 3:3, 4). There are many believers to whom the promise has become but a formal truth in a confession of faith or a creed. But the failure of men to recognize truth and their unwillingness to hold it precious, do not alter the fact. Jesus is coming again!

When He comes, He will have many things to accomplish, but—and this is our second fact—one of the most important is that there shall be an accounting with His followers (who are supposed to be His servants) regarding the life they have lived. What will your answer and mine be in that day? It depends on what we are and what we are doing right now.

The basis of His judgment appears in the following verses, where we learn that:

II. We Are to Be Rewarded for Faithfulness (Luke 19:16-26).

When believers stand in the presence of Christ to answer for the deeds done in the flesh (our sins were judged at Calvary!), it will not be a question of what church you belong to, or what family name you bear, or how much money you have amassed. No, the only question asked will be, "Have you been faithful in trading with the gifts, the abilities and the opportunities which God has given you?"

Note that there are three different judgments here, but all on the one ground of faithfulness. The first man represents those who with all diligence and zeal seek to grow spiritually and to serve the Lord with glad abandon. All that they have and are they give to Him for His glory and for the winning of others to Him. They will be commended by the Lord and great will be their reward!

The second man, with equal opportunity, did accomplish something, but not too much. He represents those who do want to serve the Lord but with no special zeal, no great measure of sacrificial endeavor—just "average" (what an unfortunate standard!) Christians.

The Lord is fair. He does not deprive them of their reward. In the measure that they have been faithful, they too shall find joyous service for Him. But observe that there is no special word of commendation in this case, and there is a limited reward.

The third man represents those who profess to be in fear of God. He seems to demand so much of them and they are not ready to give it. After all, they say, we want to enjoy life. Why should the Lord expect so much of us? Not only do they lose all reward, but the Lord must take away even that which He has already given.

III. We Are Commanded to Work (II Thes. 3:10-12).

From the day that God put Adam in the garden of Eden to care for it, honest work has been the lot of all mankind—yes, and his honor. There is no place in the economy of God for the man or woman who is able to work but is not willing to do so. "If any will not work, neither let him eat" (v. 10).

Apparently there were some in the church at Thessalonica who perverted the teaching of the Lord's return, who said that if Jesus were coming any day there was no use working. They had turned the truth completely around. The point is that since Jesus may come at any time, we should all be doing our utmost to accomplish all we can so that we may stand in His presence with joy, and not with shame.

It may be caused by disorder of kidney function that permits poisonous waste to accumulate. For truly many people feel tired, weak and miserable when the kidneys fail to remove excess acids and other waste matter from the blood.

You may suffer nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, headaches, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling. Sometimes frequent and scanty urination with smarting and burning is another sign that something is wrong with the kidneys or bladder.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won countrywide approval than on something less favorably known. Doan's have been tried and tested many years. Are at all drug stores. Get Doan's today.

THE STORY THUS FAR: Amos Croy settled on a farm at Marysville, Missouri, where he married and a son, Homer, was born. Homer's earliest recollection was of a cyclone which blew the sod barn down and wrecked the orchard. Sunday meant church, company for dinner and guessing the weight of the steers. Dehorning of the calves was always a big event on the Croy farm. Curing of hams was a distasteful job to Homer, as he had to clean the smoke house and get the fuel ready, then keep the fires burning. He was well repaid, however, when his mother started to serve the baked and fried ham. Homer did not like farm work, although he enjoyed the fruits of his efforts.

CHAPTER VI

The ordinary way to feed a calf, when it is being weaned and made to drink out of a bucket, is to put the bucket on the ground and push the calf's head in and try to hold it there till he has to gasp for breath; in doing this, he is supposed to get the taste of milk and finally learn to drink out of a bucket. It works after a fashion, but I shudder to think of the Sunday suits that have been sprayed with milk, for a calf has no good opinion of having its nose held under the milk, so raises his head and blows the milk like a paint sprayer. Sometimes I was in a hurry and thought the calf would not do that tonight; so I would not change my clothes, when I got back from town, and I would go to him with the bucket of milk. The eyesight of calves is that of eagles and the moment I would get inside the calf lot, he would come flying at me, having some fool notion that I was his mother. The moment had arrived. I would seize his empty head and shove it to the bottom of the bucket and hold it there, hoping to God everything would be all right. It never was. He would lift his head out of the warm sweet milk and lunge to the other end of the lot and bawl for his mother who was going crazy on the other side of the fence. I would follow with the bucket and hold it out temptingly; but he knew there was nothing in it but disappointment and would have nothing to do with it. I would try again; he then would get the smell of the milk and would begin to butt and plunge harder than ever.

The accepted way was for me to get the calf's head in the bucket, then hold up my finger and let him think I was his mother; his tongue would wrap around my finger and his sides would go in and out and his tail would give little tremors. At last, a trickle of milk would get into his mouth and I would stand beside him till he had his meal. The next morning, or the next evening, it would be the same thing over; then bit by bit I would slip my thumb up my finger and shorten my grip until at last he got only a button; then came the day when he would discover he didn't have to have my finger in the bucket and could do the job alone. That was a big day; the calf was weaned.

One day I took a piece of rubber hose off the steam-cooker and cut it into about a five-inch length and nailed one end of it to the wooden bottom of the bucket. There was a hole through it, of course, so that milk would travel up to it. When feeding time came and the calf made a flying tackle at me, I shoved my hand into the milk and when he tried to find my finger, I slipped the tube into his mouth. It was a breathless, exciting moment.

A satisfied glaze came into his eyes; the brush on his tail flapped back and forth, his gullet went up and down, his sides went in and out.

I called Pa and showed it to him and he said it was the first time he had ever heard of this being done. If it was anything about farming, Pa would know. That night he told Ma about it, but not in a way to go to my head because he didn't believe in boys getting too much praise. My mother thought it was wonderful.

Day after day it worked. No spraying. No calves bawling up and down the fence. No cows going crazy.

I was what the people in my section called a "book boy." The printed word fascinated me, as machinery fascinated some boys. And ideas fascinated me. Sometimes it seemed to me an idea well expressed was one of the most lovely things in the world. Things that I liked in our farm papers, I would read over and over. I would ask what the words meant; sometimes Pa and Ma knew and sometimes they didn't, but that was all right. I would wait patiently until I saw that word again and maybe this time I could make sense out of it. We had no dictionary, but, like everybody else, we had a good horse-doctor book.

At night, before I would blink off to sleep in my chair, I would read and reread Wallace's Farmer. We also took the county weekly and that I would read, too, but it wasn't the world of enchantment that Wallace's Farmer was. One section was devoted to new methods and discoveries; then and there an idea was born.

I set to work on it, without a word to my father or mother. At last it was lying on the kitchen table, my words, my thoughts, my idea! Never before had I experienced the joy of creative effort. And the pain, too, for they seem to walk hand in hand like a brother and sister toddling off to school. Now that I had it done, I didn't know what to do with it, lost as I had been in creation. I copied it, however, and with my secret locked in my heart wrote a letter to my friend Mr. Wallace, for he seemed that near and real to me, and when we went to town Saturday, shoved it in the brass slot at the post office.

One Saturday, when Pa brought home the Farmer, there it was! Something I had written. My name. I showed it to Ma, not quite able yet to show it to Pa. She gazed at me wonder-eyed; and yet she wasn't quite surprised, for she thought I was wonderful. You know mothers.

Pa came in from slopping the pigs and Ma said, "Sit down, Amos, I want to read you something." I tried to look casually out of the window.

Pa leaned forward as he recognized the idea. There, at the bottom where it was printed, Ma read my name.

It took Pa about a minute to speak. Finally he said, "Homer, did you really write that?"

"I guess I did," I said, trying to pretend it wasn't anything.

"Let me see the paper." He put on his glasses and looked suspiciously, as if Ma and I had perpetrated some sort of hoax, then read it to himself from beginning to end, his lips moving to form the words.

"That's real helpful information, Homer. You was smart to think of writin' it up and sending it to a paper."

It was a splendid moment. But other things had to be done; the farm work had to go on, and, bit by bit, my glory faded.

The brush on his tail flapped back and forth.

My mother had the quality of "believing" in people. No matter how unconscionable a rascal a person was my mother always found something about him to believe in. Sometimes we would tell her that So-and-So was a no-good. But my mother still clung to the unwavering faith she had in human beings.

As a result our place was a regular halfway house for tramps. I've heard that tramps have a way of making a private mark on the gate, or a post, to show that a gullible person lives there. Well, there must have been one at our farm, for they all turned in. And, what is more, they all got fed, no matter how busy, or how tired she was. She would even stop while bluing the clothes to get up a plate of food for some wretch who said he was hungry.

But she would always tell them (very sternly, here) that she wouldn't give them a bite unless they earned it. Then she would ask them if they were willing to work. They always were. Or so they said. She would send them to the woodpile and pretty soon they would be whacking away. Sometimes they would develop a splinter in their hand, or a sprain in their back. She would feel sorry for them and tell them that at least they showed a willing spirit and that they could now come and sit down on the edge of the back porch and eat the little we had. She always said that. Yet we always had abundance. As they ate, she would draw up a chair and sit, just inside the screen door in the house, talking to them and suffering with them as they told of their frightful hardships. No matter how wild the story was, she always believed it, and she always believed in them.

But one day a different type of tramp came along. Hungry, of course; just about starving, he said. My mother began her regular speech. She would give him something to eat, but he would have to earn it. The tramp looked at her without speaking, evidently making up his mind about something.

But on the whole this quality of my mother's to believe in people never really harmed her. Now and then she was duped, but, on the whole, she got along better than most people who believe everybody is a rascal and can't be trusted out of sight. Sometimes, I think, we discover in people what we look for. My mother looked for the best and she usually found it.

She also was the "quietest" teacher I ever knew. Sometimes I did not know I was being taught; sometimes the impact of what she had taught did not hit me until long after.

At this time the farmers were putting in croquet grounds, so of course I wanted one. This meant work, for I had to get our spade and level off some of the humps in the yard and fill in the holes, but I got the work done and my father brought home a long wooden box with a little iron hook and eye on the side. I was delighted with the wooden mallets. Each had a band of color around the handle and each ball had a band of color, too. The stakes wore a rainbow. It was a fine croquet set and I was thrilled. Ma and Pa and Phebe (my mother's niece) and the hired man and I would play. I would stop work any time.

One day, when I was in town, a neighbor boy Earl Trullinger came to see me. He had become bored by having to play alone and had banged things about. Then he left.

When I got home, two of my precious mallet handles were broken.

I was mad, and that night after work I sat down to write Earl a letter. I could not wait till I saw him. I wanted my revenge then and there. I told him exactly what I thought of him; then I went back and told it all over again just to make sure.

My mother kept watching me, as I destroyed Earl, and when my masterpiece was finished, she asked me to read it aloud which I did with a great deal of pleasure.

As I read she kept nodding her head and saying, "My! my! that's going to scorch him." "That's it, Homer, give it to him!"

I was pleased with her approval, and went back and added some fine touches.

"That's the best one yet. Tear into him again."

I tore into him until pretty soon Earl was in a worse condition than my mallet handles.

When my letter was completed and I was glowing, she said, "I think you can improve on that. Tackle it again tomorrow night."

I was for getting it into the mail while the thing was still sizzling, but under her advice, I waited. The next night I got out my letter and read it through again. It did not seem quite so good.

"Tear it up," she said.

I looked at her in amazement. "Tear it up?" I repeated, flabbergasted.

"Yes. You must never mail a letter you've written in anger. Write it, but don't mail it. Now write him a nice polite letter and ask him to come over and play croquet with you."

I wrote the letter (muttering to myself). It wasn't nearly the masterpiece the other was, but it did ask him to come and play with me. I took it down to the mailbox and put it in, thinking my mother didn't know much about boys.

A few days later Earl came to see me, and brought with him two mallets from his own set with the exact colors of the ones he had broken. He said he was sorry he'd broken mine. Then he saved his face. He had been getting ready to bring the mallets over when he had received my letter, he said.

It wasn't long before Earl and I were whooping and screeching and banging the balls about in the utmost good fellowship. My mother did not mention the matter and it was not until some time later that the full force of what she had taught hit me.

In January my father would say, "I expect we'd better get ready to butcher," and my heart would go down again. More work. "I'll help you carry out the kettle, Homer."

Another of his sly jokes, for he would have to do most of the carrying. We'd get the big black iron kettle and carry it out and put it on an old tumbling rod from a threshing outfit. It was my duty, when the kettle was dangling on the rod, to bring wood and a basket of coals to start the fire. Pa would be cutting and sharpening the gambrels; when that was done we'd haul out the bobbed. Work, work, no end of work: that's the way it seemed to me. Yet kind of exciting, too, for tomorrow there'd be lots of people, and lots of laughing and coddling.

The next morning I could hardly wait till I'd see the neighbors coming down the road. By the time they arrived, the fire would be leaping, the scalding platform and the cutting tables would be ready. One of the neighbors would be Newt Kennedy—Newt with his overcoat held together in front by the huge brass safety pin, his trousers stuffed into the tops of his felt boots, and his butcher knives in his hands. These he'd lay carefully on the cutting table, for one man wouldn't dream of using another man's knives unless given permission. Then Newt'd head for me, because Newt and I liked each other, and we would talk about rabbit hunting and mule breaking and where we'd seen prairie chickens.

Culling Out 4-Fs Will Insure Winter Profits

It's Easy to Pick Out Loafers in Any Flock

Culling of laying hens should start the day they are hatched. Weak and deformed chicks will never pay for their feed. Slow maturing, slow feathering pullets are a liability.

Poor layers will molt early, slowly, and will have coarse, meaty, or very thin, weak-looking heads. Those with yellow, coarse, beefy flesh are not good layers and should be culled out, as should those with small sunken eyes.

Broad back, deep body, straight keel and pin bone—mark of good layer.

When in good health, a poor layer will have rounded, fat shanks and will retain their yellow color in shanks and beak.

A poor layer will be shallow-chested and round-bodied and have thick, meaty, rigid laybones with a rounded narrow back and hard abdomen. The slacker will also have a narrow spread between the pelvis bones, one or one-and-a-half finger widths.

The wise poultryman, even though he does not trapnest, will know of the past performance of families and will breed only from those that have proven themselves for health, vigor and egg laying. When he purchases baby chicks or pullets, he will purchase only those tested and of a proven high producing egg strain, as well as from a strain free from disease.

Most culled pullets and hens will bring a good price on the market, or can be utilized for home consumption or canned. Where locker plants are available, it will be profitable to store them until they are needed. Locker plant rental will cost less than feeding a non-producer.

Improve Dairy Ration With Proper Minerals

Natural feeds should apply enough of most minerals needed by dairy cows. However, mineral elements might be deficient in some farm rations, in which case dairy cattle may require supplements of calcium and phosphorus in addition to the regular farm-grown hay and grains. Timothy is sadly lacking in calcium, alfalfa and clover containing three to four times as much of this mineral. It must also be remembered that some excellent legume hays may be deficient in phosphorus if grown on soils that lack it and on which phosphorus fertilizers are not used.

When little or no grains are fed, dairy cows may benefit from phosphorus supplements. Usually the grains will furnish all the phosphorus needed by live stock.

New Farm Facts

The giant Entelodont was the earliest known hog, often reaching a height of five feet.

When pigs are confined to a pen or floor, even for a week or two, anemia is likely to develop.

Lime lost from the soil by drainage is equivalent to more than 700 pounds of limestone an acre a year.

A dollar will buy thousands of matches, and a single match can destroy millions of dollars worth of farm property.

Burning off weeds is condemned as a pasture practice—it injures desirable grass plants, mulch, and leaves ground exposed to erosion.

DDT, the new powerful insecticide, promises to be one of the greatest gifts to farmers of the century. Supply will be limited as long as the armed forces need it so great.

Surplus Fat for Soap

Following butchering operations there is usually a surplus of fat as well as fat that has become old and rancid which can be used to make soap. Heat the fat until it is well melted, adding one pound of lye in three pints of water to every seven pounds of fat. Mix and stir slowly until the mixture resembles honey, pour into granite or wooden containers and cool. The fat should not be heated more than 150 degrees Fahrenheit.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Johnson celebrated their ninth wedding anniversary Thursday November 16. In honor of the occasion they were dinner guests of the latter's sister Mrs. Milton Holl of Joliet, whose son Chas. was three years old the same day.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ulrich were feted at Emily Hall at New Lenox Friday evening in honor of their 7th wedding anniversary. About 150 guests danced to music provided by Gerald Krohn's orchestra. Refreshments were served following the Grand March. Mrs. Ulrich and her former bridal attendants were in formal attire and wore corsages of pink carnations. The honored couple was presented with a purse.

The Young Women's Circle of the Green Garden Methodist church met Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wendell Morrison for a potluck luncheon. Devotions were led by Mrs. Harold Ulrich and Mrs. Emory Bettenhausen was program chairman. The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Evelyn Rab on Dec. 6.

Mrs. Harold Scheer entertained members of the Green Garden Home Bureau at her home Friday afternoon. Mrs. Earl Bettenhausen presided. The roll call was answered with My Favorite Form of Recreation. The major lesson Soy Bean Cookery, was presented by Mrs. Wm. Schram and Mrs. Lawrence Werner. Mrs. Emer Morrison read an article on Russia for the minor lesson. Mrs. A. Schmidt will be the hostess December 8 at a Christmas part and gift exchange.

The Women's Guild of St. Peter's Ev. church will meet Thursday afternoon Nov. 30 at 2:30 o'clock. Following the business and devotion at meeting, a supper will be served to the public. A Thank offering ingathering will be held in the evening at 7:30 o'clock to which the public is invited. A special program is being arranged and the speaker will be Mrs. Ella Nicodemus of Highland, Ill., who was engaged in educational work in Japan before the war. She spent 6 months in an internment camp and was a passenger on the Gripsholm. Mrs. Nicodemus studied at the Universities of Illinois and California. Members are urged to bring their thank offering boxes to this service.

T. C. Bogdan, quartermaster, U. S. Maritime Service returned to New York Monday after spending a leave at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. Alois Bogdan. During this time, his 21st birthday which occurred in September was celebrated here. Guests were Mr. and Mrs. Fred Whitlark of Mokena, Mr. and Mrs. R. Bachara of Tinley Park, Mr. and Mrs. C. Howell and daughter Dorothy of Joliet, Ensign Frederick Whitlark and the latter's fiancée Miss Amelia Thoren of Joliet. Announcement was made last week in Joliet by Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Howell of the engagement of their daughter Dorothy to Mr. Bogdan, but no definite plans have been made for the wedding. Miss Howell and Mr. Bogdan are both graduates of the Joliet Township high school and both attended Joliet Junior College. "Teddy", as he is known to friends here, entered the Merchant Marine in January 1942 and has been on convoy duty since then. He recently completed a 10 month trip aboard a tanker in the South Pacific.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Bruggeman, Mr. and Mrs. John Weitenhoff and family, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Elsner and daughter were dinner guests at the Geo. Elsner home for Thanksgiving.

THANKSGIVING GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Dralle and sons were guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Oetter.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Woodman's and Mrs. Lillie Hershbach's guests were Mrs. Walter Hershbach and children, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Grometer and Miss Eveline Beckman all of Aurora.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Baker of Wilmington were guests at the Wm. Baker home.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wise entertained the latter's mother Mrs. Patrick Lynch of Ft. Wayne during the holiday week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Buckman and son Fred, Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Bal-

WARTIME IDEAS FOR DAIRYMEN

Keep Milk Production Up in Winter Weather with a

STOCK TANK WATER HEATER

Another type of water heater is this combination hog and cattle waterer used in connection with the pressure water system on the Levi Toder farm near Bradford.

Together with other modern electric equipment, stock tank water heaters are helping Northern Illinois Farmers in their big war job—feeding America.

It's a well-known fact that milk production falls off during cold snaps. One important reason: Cows are reluctant to drink cold or chilled water. Since milk is about 87% water, it is easy to see why cows give less when they drink less.

By using a Stock Tank Water Heater, water can be kept at a drinkable temperature all winter long. There are several types of tank heaters (some farmers have even made their own) that prevent water from freezing, take the icy chill out of it, and thus encourage animals to drink more often and more fully of the water that makes milk, fattens livestock.

Take a tip from the Red Top Farm, keep a constant supply of fresh, pure water available to your herd at all times . . . and keep it at a drinkable temperature during the cold months with a Stock Tank Water Heater. It's one of the best ways to keep livestock production rising when the temperature is falling.

If you're waiting for a home telephone

... you naturally want to know how soon we can fill your order.

We wish we could tell you but the fact is that it depends on these two things:

- 1 The extent to which present subscribers may decide to give up service, thus releasing central office equipment, instruments, outside wires, etc.
- 2 The extent to which manufacturing facilities and manpower, new and released equipment, are available after the needs of war are met.

Meantime, we promise you this: Your application will not be forgotten and it will be filled in the proper turn.

"WAKE UP, AMERICA!"

Are Free Enterprise Proponents Opposed to Monopolies?

Moderated by RED G. CLARK
Chairman, American
Economic Foundation

As debated by

Raoul Desvernine
Nationally Known Attorney, Former President of Crucible Steel
Company of America

Hon. John M. Coffee
Congressman, 6th District, Washington, Member, Committee on Appropriations

MR. DESVERNINE OPENS: Human beings become monopolistic as soon as they can clutch their first toy and they stay that way until they die. We monopolize our homes, our wives and attempt to monopolize our method of earning a living. Even Mr. Coffee attempts to monopolize the representation of his district in Congress. Society's job is not to destroy mankind's monopolistic desire, but to harness it for the public good. America's successful harnessing of this great force explains America's astounding material progress. We have laws controlling harmful monopolies but these laws are secondary in importance to the tremendous disciplinary powers of the free body of citizens who by their everyday purchases elevate those businesses which serve them well and destroy those businesses that do not. Henry Ford had a virtual monopoly on low-priced cars as long as he built the best. When other manufacturers offered a better car, and Ford refused to change his Model T, the American public almost put him out of business. He saved himself only by obeying the will of the customer. I know of not a single business in America that has escaped the ruthless discipline of the American customer whose freedom of choice makes him all-powerful.

CONG. COFFEE CHALLENGES: Certainly, humans are prone to become monopolistic, but ordered society must not surrender to selfish consequences. Free enterprise means freedom of competition in open markets. An English journalist said—an acute American problem was the battle to preserve "freedom" from "enterprise". Admittedly, cartels or world monopolies exist; American monopolies work in close collaboration. The recent TNEC and Senate Patents Committee investigations proved this. War monopolies have expanded because they contended the Sherman Anti-Trust Law impeded production. When, through patent, or exclusive ownership of source material, an enterprise becomes a monopoly, free enterprise is shackled. The loudest champions of so-called free enterprise are the sycophantic tools of monopoly.

MR. DESVERNINE REPLIES: An English journalist may have said that American freedom needed to be preserved from enterprise, but an English Prime Minister said that American enterprise needed to be preserved from the New Deal. Mr. Coffee, in trying to identify bigness with badness, speaks as if America were hopelessly monopoly-ridden. If we have any illegal, harmful monopolies, Mr. Coffee need only inform the Department of Justice. The weakness of Mr. Coffee's position is that these charges don't hold water. A favorite whipping boy of the New Dealers is the Aluminum Company of America. Hundreds of thousands of taxpayers' dollars were spent in prosecuting the Aluminum Company. The company found no monopoly, no evil, no legal practices. How much longer will we listen to this dreary hate?

CONG. COFFEE REPLIES: The greatness of America was attained during the period of free competition. The independent business spirit, the ambition engendered constitute important factors in our growth and prosperity. Monopolies flourish through subterfuge, misrepresentation, pressures, lobbies, control of regulatory bodies. The people must demand decentralization. The telephone monopoly has combated all attempts to decentralize. The concentration of war contracts in relatively few gigantic industries has had the effect of wiping out thousands of small competitors. Congress then created the Smaller War Plants Corporation. Every congressman knows how difficult it is for small business to seek the federal help, priorities and ration necessary to carry on in a program in which monopoly shadows small.

WOMEN'S SERVICE CLUB NEWS
By Mrs. Leslie Clark
Mrs. Gladys Schenkel has received word from her husband, Pfc. Edward Schenkel that he has landed safely in England with a Signal

Corp Battalion.

Mrs. Wm. Roberts has received word that her son Pfc. Michael Roberts has landed safely in the Philippines. 'Mike' was formerly stationed in New Guinea and has been in the south Pacific more than two years.

Petty Officer 2-C, Russell Bennett spent a few hours at home the past week end.

St. Sgt. Harold Balaz is enjoying a few days at home before returning to California.

Cpl. Robt. Clark spent the week end at home.

St. Sgt. Emory Ahlborn has returned to his station at Newark, N. J., after a short furlough at home.

Please send in your Servicemen's correct address to our secretary, Miss Elmira McGovney. We are anxious to have every man and woman in the Service from Mokena area receive a box at Christmas. Your co-operation will be greatly appreciated.

We received the following from Pfc. Albert Agazzi who is in Italy: Dear Mrs. Clark: Just a line to let you know that I am O. K., and to thank you and the women of the Service Club for the birthday gift you sent me thru Alma. I appreciate it very much. Will try and write you more later.

Sincerely, 'Al'.

The following interesting letter is from Lt. Edw. Lauffer from Italy:

Dear Editor: Now that I have a permanent address I am looking forward to getting the local paper again. It has been quite some time since I have heard any news from my home town, in fact, about three weeks. Going overseas certainly puts the works to that regular mail call.

When I look around me here I can see in so many different ways how lucky Americans are. The war has been quite rough with the Italians, but I think that things are picking up once again.

Although, I am about as far north as you at home, I do not expect to see snow here at the base, except when I look at the mountains in the distance. Have seen plenty of them here and on the way over. I was listening to the results of the election on the radio as I came over Italy on the morning of Nov. 8. The time here is six hours ahead of your time. Here's the bottom (V-Mail) so I had better close. So long, Sincerely yours, Edward Lauffer.

Editor's note: So glad to hear from you, an interesting letter you wrote. The News-Bulletin is on the way to you and hope you get it. Good luck, and write again.

MOKENA AUX. V.F.W. NEWS

Just a reminder. Auxiliary members are invited to Mrs. Stanley Nordstrom's home in Lockport Friday, November 24. There will be a potluck dinner. The afternoon will be spent in making Lap Robes for the boys in the hospital. All members planning to attend call Alma Peterson or Maude Larson.

The next regular meeting of the Auxiliary to Wm. Martin Post will be held Thursday December 7 at Hatch Hall. All officers are requested to come in uniform.

Smartly Curtaining Your French Doors

HOW to make French door curtains harmonize with the window treatment in a room is a question that always arises. Frequently, over-draperies are omitted for the doors even though they are used for windows. The same glass curtain material is then used as for the windows but a heading and rod is used both top and bottom. However, over-draperies add dignity.

Either a wooden or a metal rod extending well beyond the sides of the door frame may be hooked in place as shown here in the diagram.

It is not necessary to repeat window valances over doors though it may be done if desired by using a valance shelf or a cornice box placed high enough for the bottom of the valance to be just above doors that open in.

NOTE—This sketch is from a new booklet by Mrs. Spears called MAKE YOUR OWN CURTAINS. This 32-page book is full of smart new curtain and drapery plans for measuring, cutting, making and hanging all types from the simplest sash curtain to the most complicated lined over-drapery or stiffened valance. Whatever your curtain problem here is the answer. Order book by name and enclose 15 cents. Address:

HERE is an extremely interesting report we have just received from Frank Leahy, the coach, now a navy lieutenant, who turned out such powerful teams at both Boston College and Notre Dame—

"Dear Grantland: Just a note from out in the Pacific to say hello and to let you know something about what the writer is doing for the U. S. navy. Am connected directly with the Commander Submarine Force, Pacific Fleet, and my job consists of further installing and supervising the recreational facilities of the major submarine bases in the Pacific area.

"The average submarine patrol into enemy waters is from 50 to 60 days' duration. During this period the crew is compelled to go with very little fresh air, practically no sunshine, and, except for the first few days of the patrol, they are without fresh fruits and vegetables. In addition to this, they are constantly under pressure, due to their presence in enemy territory, which is a continuous threat to their safety. As one can easily imagine, when the patrol is completed and they finally come into port the men are badly in need of attention and a thorough rest. In fact, a mile stroll would utterly exhaust any one of them.

Plenty of Athletics

"Rest and recuperation centers are maintained at all major submarine bases for the purpose of giving these men an opportunity to rest and regain their normal vitality. They are assigned to a cottage at the recuperation center for approximately 15 days, during which time they are relieved of all duties and are completely at their leisure. Athletic programs are arranged by the recuperation center for the participation of all men who desire to take part. This consists of the following—softball, touch football, volleyball, basketball, tennis, weightlifting, beach facilities, and several other miscellaneous games. There is a beer hall operated by the recuperation center where the men are able to purchase a limited amount of beer daily. Nightly movies are shown for the submariners, which of course, are free of charge, two shows each night. A recreation hall is provided and includes pool tables, table tennis, and a reading and writing room.

"At the end of two weeks of rest and recreation, these men are fully recuperated and are ready and eager to go out once more to take another crack at the enemy. The submariners are a grand crowd of young men, are doing a wonderful job and deserve much credit for the damaging blows they are inflicting upon the Japs.

"The writer visits each of these rest and recuperation centers from time to time and is connected with them in a supervisory capacity, making observations and recommendations for an ever increasing efficiency in operation.

"It is my fervent hope that this terrible mess will end in a comparatively short time and that all of us will be able to once more return to our normal pursuits.

Sincerely,
Frank Leahy
Lieutenant, USNR."

Another Bowl Problem

If you are looking for Bowl tangles, I can slip you another one. Service men are insisting that Service teams, Pre-flights, Air Fields and others be given a Bowl chance. At first glance this sounds fair enough. But this also means tossing in veterans, including former pros against many 17-year-old kids.

Suppose for example Randolph Field's Ramblers were named. They would have to be. This squad includes some ten or eleven pros, plus a number of college veterans. They were good enough to beat Rice 59 to 0 and Texas 42 to 6, under wraps. Former pretty good pros are on their second and third squads. Strong service teams should be matched together, not used against college teams. I mean the better Service teams, and these are the ones you'd have to pick.

It would be a great idea if one of the Bowls could name the two best Service teams and put them together. Certainly Randolph Field would be no contest against any college team in the country, including Army and Navy.

Amazing Youth

This will go down as the football season of amazing and astonishing kids. For kids of 17 are more than holding their own with veterans.

If you care for two shining examples I can give you the names of two Georgia Tech freshmen, Dinkey Bowen and George Mathews. Each is 17. They have met and defeated Bob Jenkins, big Don Whitmire, Ralph Ellsworth, Bruce Smith, and a flock of other nationally known Navy stars.

Election Result:

FDR Victory As Dems Gain In Congress

Sweeping into office many senators, representatives and governors, favorable to President Roosevelt's foreign policy, the Democratic presidential and vice presidential candidates received a total of 413 electoral votes, or 36 less than received in 1940.

While President Roosevelt's vote was less in 1940, he will have with him a far more friendly congress than has been true for several years.

GAIN GOVERNORSHIPS

Unless late servicemen votes change the picture, which is not considered likely, the Democrats will have a total of 25 governors to 23 for the Republicans, as against the previous lineup of 26 Republicans and 22 Democrats. Republican executives were defeated in Ohio, Massachusetts, Missouri, Idaho and Washington. The Republicans captured the governorship in Indiana and North Dakota from the Democrats. It is possible that the 15,000 servicemen votes in Utah may change the present line-up.

Bigtown Characters:

The barber who asks patrons if they want their locks clipped with or without conversation. . . . Salesmen in hoity-toity shops always elegantly attired. Without spats they would feel naked. . . . The creamy-voiced Barker at a penny arcade—a well-known Shakespearean thespian a decade ago, until he discovered that shilling provided a steadier income. . . . Sepians at electric shoe-shine parlors conversing in jive lingo which baffles people who can understand only English.

Pretty bobby-soxers lugging lunch boxes to the Paramount—so they can survive sitting through a half-dozen shows worshipping King Sinatra. . . . Jitterbug, almond-eyed youngsters in Chinatown—complete Americanized. . . . An old artist copying masterpieces in the Museum of Art. His hands are shaky, so he steadies his brush by gripping it with both hands. The handicap, however, doesn't seem to affect his excellent canvases. . . . Crowds fascinated by pigeons nibbling at bread-crumbs. Proving again that almost anything can attract a mob in the Big Burg. . . . Germans in Yorkville saloons sipping their beer. These spots used to be Bund hangouts. Now big signs urge customers not to discuss the war or politics.

The dramatic contrast in tawdry, sidestreight joints: Entertainers consist of a mixture of has-beens and youngsters with a bright future. . . . Celeb fanatics ogling first-nighters entering the theatre—getting more of a thrill by staring at biggies than first-nighters get from the shows.

The silly brawl between two friends at a midtown bar—because each insisted on paying the check. . . . The 77-year-old gent who has the same breakfast every morning at a Madison and 50th street eatery: Doughnuts covered with mustard. Ugh. He claims that combination has added years to his life. . . . Sidewalk Napoleons who used to discuss military tactics remaining in tune with the times. Now they also debate postwar problems. . . . Swishes who congregate for some unknown reason in foreign language movie temples. . . . The lovely Schraffts' hostesses. Most of them look as if they had to pass a screen test before they were hired.

Newspaperman Stuff:

Ogden Nash was once taken to task for using the word "coyful" in one of his verses. . . . "Have you ever heard of anything being full of coy?" asked a critic. "No," nash'd Nash. "But neither did I ever hear of anyone being full of bash."

The word "controversy" serves as censor's abracadabra. . . . They mutter that something is controversial and—presto—they presume the truth will vanish. . . . Blue-pencillers have used that alibi to hinder freedom of speech and press for a long time. . . . All of which leads into an Alec Woolcott yarn that illustrates our viewpoint on the subject. . . . When Alec was broadcasting his sponsor pounced on him with the squeak that he must refrain from using controversial material. . . . Woolcott promptly demanded that the sponsor explain what he meant by "controversial material."

The sponsor's reply was a dilly: He deplored Alec's caustic references to Hitler and Mussolini—for fear it would antagonize people in the country who supported them!

From FPA's new book, "Nods and Becks": Of course, there are many who say that a daily columnist, which means a person who has six or seven full columns a week in a paper, doesn't really work, but that he would like other laborers to work six days a week for the period of the so-called — properly so-called — emergency. . . . We know not what course others may take, but we never have been able to do it under a seven-day week, and some nights. Often we dream of Jeanie with the unfilled column. We dream that we have three minutes in which to write a column, have it set, read proof and make it up. It would be pleasant to work five eight-hour days a week. To quit, in the middle of a syllable, if need be, when the whistle blew! And then some days, as if mere writing weren't enough trouble, there is a lot of clipping and pasting to do. It sounds easy, but it takes longer to find the shears and the paste for first-class stuff than it does to write third-class stuff.

The Society Set, which claims to be sophisticated, but is the easiest pushover for all types of phonies. Societyites have gushed over fake dukes, counts and other spurious nobles for years. No matter how many are exposed there are always other phonies to take their place. . . . The dowager who lost her fortune a few years ago. However, she still lives in luxury because she became a bookie! Her clients are Park Avenue. . . . Music lovers who take symphony scores to Carnegie Hall and read the music while played.

Rehearsing for Normandy

Last winter in England, 3,000 inhabitants of eight villages and 180 farms, occupying 25 square miles in South Devon, complied with the request of their government to move away so that American troops could use the area for six months as a training ground for the invasion of France, says Collier's.

As these "Normandy rehearsals" were live-ammunition battles, most of the houses, churches, shops and farm lands in the area are so wrecked that it may take years for the returning inhabitants to restore them to anything like their original condition.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Nearly 2,000 rubber tires daily were required in North Africa to replace tires or destroyed in action.

As a result of the diversion of the petroleum by-product to aviation gasoline, about 50 per cent of the butadiene produced for synthetic rubber processing so far in 1944 came from alcohol plants.

When you wonder about the shortage of civilian tires, bear in mind that in the time it takes to build one 56-inch airplane tire at B. F. Goodrich factories, seven 8.25-20 truck tires or sixty 6.00-16 passenger tires could be made. And airplane tires are "musts" these days!

When driving a nail into a wall to hang a picture, try placing a small piece of adhesive tape over the spot and drive the nail through it. This will prevent the wall from cracking there.

A little skim milk rubbed over leather chairs several times a year will keep the leather soft and prevent cracking.

To clean under the piano, place an old sock moistened with polish over a yardstick.

Add salt to the water in which eggs are to be cooked. This makes the shells more brittle and easier to remove.

If there is a suggestion of rust on your refrigerator shelves, wash them with a mild scouring powder and hot water, dry well with a soft clean cloth, and apply a thin coating of hot melted paraffin.

When sending a book through the mails, cut the corners from several heavy envelopes and place over the four corners of the book to protect them.

In order not to scorch milk, rinse the pan with water for several minutes before heating the milk.

Never use a big unsightly knot when sewing. Even a tiny knot should be hidden on the wrong side. Most dressmakers do not use a knot at all in the ends of basting threads because in removing basting the knot may catch in the threads of the fabric and pull them. Three or four fastening stitches at the beginning and end of basting will hold it securely.

Bank Robberies Cut

Between 1932 and 1943, the number of bank holdups in this country decreased from 606 to 22, or 96 per cent, because of the work of the F. B. I., with the cooperation of local authorities, the F. B. I. not being hindered by "state lines" in its pursuit of criminals.

"Yes," replied the agent. "But what's the trouble? Isn't it as I represented it to be?"
"Oh, yes," said the other. "You said it was in a busy locality where there were plenty of passers-by."
"Well!" queried the agent. "What's wrong with that?"
"There were too many passers-by."

MULTIPLE RELIEF EASES COLD MISERIES LIKE A DOCTOR'S PRESCRIPTION

Many doctors prescribe a combination of ingredients for relief of cold symptoms. Colds don't show up as a single ailment, but as a complex series of miseries. Grove's Cold Tablets are a combination of eight active medicinal ingredients. Work internally and promptly on all these symptoms: relieve headache, reduce fever, ease body aches, lessen muscular pains, ease nasal stuffiness. Take exactly as directed. Get Grove's Cold Tablets.

Important Social Security Ruling

Mr. G. A. McCollum, manager of the Joliet district office of the social Security board, today explained the effect of the Board's announcement that upon request it will recalculate the amount of old age and survivors insurance benefits available to once-retired workers to include credits for wages received since the benefits were first claimed.

"This action," Mr. McCollum said,

"is intended to take into account the fact that many workers past the age of 65, who have retired and drawn benefits, have gone back to work since the country started its preparation for war. Originally these workers, by filing a claim, set their benefits so that they could not be moved up or down. But they returned to work unexpectedly, and generally have received wages higher than before. The Board has there fore announced that, in order to meet the intent of the law, their benefits may be recomputed in order to credit towards monthly retirement benefits the wages they received after they had once filed a claim."

A number of workers in the Joliet area, comprising Will, Kankakee, LaSalle, Grundy and Kendall Counties, who are past age 65 and have received some benefits under social security, have had their payments suspended and probably will benefit from the Board's decision.

To prevent confusion of misunderstanding, Mr. McCollum issued the following cautions:

1. Increased benefits will be available only to workers 65 or older, who have claimed benefits and who subsequently have worked in jobs covered by the Social Security Act, and, generally, at higher pay than their former average monthly wage. The benefit amounts of widows, orphans, or aged parents, whose benefits were based on wages up to the time of an insured workers' death, cannot be changed.

2. Benefits will be recalculated upon request of beneficiary.

3. The announcement does not mean that any person may receive benefits while working in jobs covered by the law. The law provides that benefits must be suspended for any month in which the beneficiary makes more than $14.99 on a covered job.

4. There is no need for anybody who has been working in covered employment after he filed a claim to ask for a recomputation of his benefits as long as his pay stays as high as his average monthly wage between January 1, 1937, and the date he filed his claim. On the other hand, if his pay starts going down, as a result of illness, reduced hours, loss of his job or for any other reason, the worker who is 65 or older should consult the nearest office of the Social Security Board at once.

The Joliet office of the Social Security board is located at 58 No. Chicago St., Joliet.

In time, Mr. McCollum pointed out, the new ruling will prove beneficial to many workers who attain age 65 and face the possibility that reduced pay, no matter what the cause, may result in reduced benefits. In the past, he said, some of these workers have chosen to "freeze" their benefit amounts by filing a claim, even though they intended to keep on working. That protected them against any drop in the benefit, but it also prevented any increase. The net effect is that a worker, upon reaching age 65, may "peg" his benefit so that it will not be reduced but can be increased on the basis of his future work record.
